The document appears to be a legal or official record, possibly a deed or agreement. It mentions the names of several individuals, including Thomas Mayo, Michael Mayo, and Samuel Mayo. The text is written in Latin script and contains references to land, fields, and other legal terms. The document is quite old, and the handwriting is difficult to decipher in places. It seems to be a formal agreement or transaction related to real estate or land ownership.

A town meeting in the town of Newbury on the 1st day of June, 1747, for the purpose of consulting about the land which had been laid off by the town at the back of the hilly town of Newbury, was held at the house of Elisha Borden, on the west side of the town. The land was to be laid off to the easterly limits of the town, and the boundary line was to be surveyed by the town surveyor. The meeting was attended by many of the townsmen, and the land was discussed extensively. The land was finally surveyed and laid off, and the townsmen were satisfied with the results.

At the request of James Regeck to have a new layout as was formerly granted to Capt. John Reed, an proclamation was made to the town concerning the location of the town. John Reed, who signed the proclamation with a cross, was appointed to survey the land where the fort was to be built. Thence back to the west, the fort would be located on the south side of the town. The town is specified as the town of Nathaniel Mayo.

John Reed, James Reed, and others, the town clerk.

At a town meeting September 10, 1780, Capt. John Reed made the town to agree to build a fort on the land. The meeting house was to be located on the north side of the town. Joshua Brown, the town clerk, was appointed to build the fort. After a vote, the fort was to be built on the north side of the town. Thence back to the town, the fort was to be located on the south side of the town. The town is specified as the town of Nathaniel Mayo.

John Reed, James Reed, and others, the town clerk.

This is a transcript of a legal document written in 1694. The text appears to be a trial record or a legal agreement. The handwriting is difficult to decipher, but it seems to be a formal document dealing with property and legal matters.

The document begins with a reference to a certain John Mayo, and it appears to be a statement regarding the acquisition or disposition of land or property. The text is filled with legal terms and phrases, typical of 17th-century legal writing.

The document is further dated and signed by parties involved, indicating its official nature. The language used is formal and indicative of the legal proceedings of the time.

Whereas Thomas Gifford late of Hempstead, dwelling at Hempstead, in the County and State of Long Island, in the Province of New York, by his said will, directed to be published in due form, the contents of which are as follows:

"The will of Thomas Gifford, late of Hempstead, in the County and State of Long Island, in the Province of New York, being publised in due form, the contents of which are as follows:

Granted by Thomas Gifford at a deputation in the vestry of the church of Hempstead, on the 1st day of August, 1693, to Thomas Gifford, to the extent of 20 acres, of land, for the sum of 50 pounds sterling, to be held in trust for the use of the said Thomas Gifford, or his assigns, for the term of 21 years, and then to be sold and the proceeds returned to Thomas Gifford or to his assigns.

In the said deputation, it was ordered that the said land be surveyed and divided into three equal parts, and that each part be sold, and the proceeds of each sale be paid to the said Thomas Gifford.

The survey of the land was made by the surveyor of the parish, and the boundaries were marked with stakes and stones, and the boundaries were described in the said deputation.

In witness whereof, the said Thomas Gifford, or his assigns, have subscribed their names, and the said deputation was signed and sealed this 1st day of August, 1693."
