On the 29th day of December, 1760, a meeting was held by the town of Eastham for the purpose of selecting three men to serve as constables for the town. The names of the selected constables were:

- Captain William Russell
- William B. Higgins
- Edmund P. Phillips

The constables' duties were to enforce the laws and maintain order within the town. The meeting was attended by a large number of citizens, and the air was filled with a sense of patriotism and civic responsibility.

The town clerk recorded the minutes of the meeting, which were to be kept in a book provided by the town. The minutes were to be signed by all members present.

The meeting adjourned, and a formal thank-you was given to the members of the committee who had attended the meeting and conducted the business of the town.

The meeting was well attended, and the residents of Eastham were proud of their town and its residents. The future of the town looked bright, and the citizens were eager to work together for the betterment of their community.
